

WON WITH A FOOL SYSTEM.Gambler Plays the Seventh Horse in Each Race Successfully.

"Now, luck," said a sporting man to a Buffalo Express writer, "is a curious thing. There's a them that have it, and there's them that don't have it, and the worst of it is that nobody has it any more regular than a man has chills and fever, and most everybody no so regular by a long shot."

"But, speaking of luck, I saw a case a while ago that near made me crazy. I was in a pool-room down in Baltimore and I was playing very close to the cushion. Nothing came my way and I had but a few dollars between me and the touching of some friend, for I make, I say, a few cents in there, every day. I sat and got out with $1.42 in cash, which wasn't next and I didn't get a cent of it. After it was all over he told us he had almost made me go to him that same night, and I think he would go through."

There were five races that afternoon and he played them all. He played them and he won, and $1.42 is what he got. If he'd had a good-size roll when he started, he'd have broken the room and won. That was it. He played that same night, and won. That was it. And what do you think his system was?

"He started at the top and counted down to the bottom, and when he got to the next race, there were but four horses, and he counted one, two, three, four, and then started at the top again and counted four more, so he had four horses, and won. That was it. His pick won every race. And what do you think made him do it?"

"His girl told him to. Look here. Why, some one had to burn it, and he was of that kind. Not again in 60,000 years would that scheme work. I tried for a week and I know."
